Our common property

There is a 'chautaro' (place to sit and take rest) close to Bhushan's home. People sit on it. There is a tap close to it. There is a temple a bit up from the tap. Near the temple there is a small inn. People sit or stay at there.

There is a shop close to the inn. People buy and sell goods there. Bhushan also buys his goods from there. There is a post-office near Bhushan's house. Relatives and friends send letters through the post office. A playground is also there nearby his house. Bhushan plays with his friends in the ground.

The chautaro, taps, inn, post office, ground, health-post and schools etc. are the public places. They are our common property.
