Brahmins and Chhetris

Brahmins and Chhetris are the major caste groups of Nepal. According to the Census report 2011, the population size of chhetris is 4,398,053 which is (16.59%) and Brahmins 3,226,903 which is (12.18%). Most of the Brahmins and Chhetris are Hindus. Brahmins and Chhetris live in villages, hamlets, and isolated homesteads. The walls of their small houses are constructed from stone or mud brick, painted red ochre around the base, whitewashed above, and topped with a thatched roof. Most of the marriage is arranged by the parents. But, love marriage is also becoming popular nowadays. Brahmins also act as family priests, and Chhetris serve in both the Nepalese army and the Gorkha (Gurkha) brigades of the British and Indian armies. After giving birth, name giving ceremony is performed on the 11th day. Death rites are common as of other Hindus. The deceased is mourned for 13 days.

Newars

Newar is a dominant ethnic group of Nepal. Newar of total size 1,321,933 forms 4.99% of the total population, according to the census 2011. Newars are rich in culture and religion. The best example for that are the numerous jatras, pujas and social ceremonies they manage to conduct even in today's fast life. Newars are of two origins; Buddhists and Hindus. Newars are found scattered in the various parts of Nepal even though they were originally from the Kathmandu Valley. Naming Ceremony takes place on 4th and 11th day of the baby's birth. "Belbibaha" is performed before the marriage of a girl. Both arranged and love marriages are performed in this community. Dashain, Tihar, Gaijatra, Indrajatra, and Mhapuja are very significant festivals for Newars.
