Don't be Over-imitative

Mohan Lal used to live in a village before. He would love his festivals and rituals. He would actively participate in all the ceremonies and functions held in his village. He loved wearing Nepali daura, suruwal, topi and waist coat. He also loved singing folk songs in tune of the madal. Roti, dhindo, gundruk made his favourite foods. He was good at studies too. He would say he wished to get a high degree in his studies to serve the society.

One should involve himself/herself in the development work of the village. He directed his friends to preserve our language, culture and rituals. He finished his schooling from the local school. He then moved to the town for further studies. After only a brief life in the town, he went changed. Nobody had expected that would happen. He did not remain Mohan Lal anymore. He changed his name to Michael. Instead of traditional dress, he started wearing new dress, tearing it at different places. He kept long hair. He forgot the folk songs to pick up English songs and rap. He left the madal to get used to the drum-set. He forgot Nepali fair and festival, tempted by disco. In total disregard to oil lamp at pray,

He celebrated his birthday by blowing out the candles cake and burger gave him better taste. Freshly made dhindo and roti was of no taste to him. He had come to the town with a promise to continue his studies and return to serve his village. But he forgot all these. In the name of modernization, he opted to show off. He disregarded country life and tradition.

Dear Sudha

How are you? I am fine here. I hope you are also fine there. I am writing some words about my weakness. I hope you will forgive me, won't you? I do believe you are kind enough to me.

I'm terribly sorry for being delayed to give your book back. I heartily promise that I will give you it next week. Will you excuse me? I do hope that you'll do. I have been suffering from a common cold and fever for two weeks. I had to be admitted to hospital and stayed on a bed rest for a week. Therefore, I've been unable to give your book back on time. I have not read the whole book yet. I'm going to read it today and onward. Please forgive me, will you?

What's about your brother? He is in America nowadays, isn't he? Are you willing to go there? Please tell me if you go.

I'm looking forward to hearing from you very soon.

Yours
Babita

The End.
