Lesson – Agents and Modes of Socialization

a. Answer the following questions:

1. What are the modes of socialization? Write them down.
2. Give any two examples of the primary agents of socialization.
3. Summarize the paragraph given below:
An individual functions as a base of socialization. As a conscious member of a society, he/she learns as well as teaches many things from/to others. Hence, all social members promote socialization and bring all-round development to their society. To reform the society, they always remain active. They work collectively for common benefits and mobilize the available means and resources to the fullest. This way, individuals in a society play vital role for positive socialization.
4. Socialization has many striking characteristics. Mention any two of them.
