Once upon a time there was a king. He had a friend, monkey. The king loved him very much. The monkey helped the king in his work.

One summer noon, the king was sleeping. As it was a hot day, the monkey was fanning him and looking after him. In the mean time a housefly came and sat on the king's nose, The monkey drove it off. It came and sat on the king's nose. The monkey drove it off. But the house fly came again and again. At last the monkey got very angry. When the fly sat again, the monkey picked up a sword and struck the fly. But the fly was too quick to be killed, it flew away and the king's nose was cut.
