An Introduction to Society and Community

An individual is the basic component of both community and society. Society is a collection of different communities. Thus, different communities make the fundamental building block of society. Likewise, society makes the building block of a country. Hence, both community and society are necessary elements in sociology and humanities. They demonstrate human characteristics, interactions and connections with one another.

There is a strong relationship of need and co-operation among the people in a community. They share sorrow and happiness. They help each other to fulfil their needs. But all needs of people cannot be fulfilled in a community. They need the help of people from other communities also. So, people need a society. In a society, there are people of different occupations. There are farmers, teachers, doctors, cobblers, tailors, shopkeepers, barbers, etc. Farmers grow crops and provide us with food. Doctors look after us when we are sick.

A Society is formed by group of communities. So, a community is smaller in size. It is a part of a society. A community is limited to an area whereas a society may have a broader area regardless of geography. In a community, people have strong feeling of 'we'. They have many similarities like language, religion, culture, etc. They have common interests. But in a society people have likeness and differences.

Questions:

1. What do you learn from your community? Write any few points you learn from your community.
2. Write down any two things you like the most about your society and two things you dislike. Is there anything we can do to change the things we 'dislike' to the things we 'like'?
3. What are the differences between a community and a society? 4. Watch a video entitled 'What is Society?' on YouTube. (Link: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=\_5K34Vr8Xsk). Write down a short summary on what lessons you learned after watching the video. (Note: If there is any confusion, please note down which we will discuss in our next class.)
