(AN-5) Study the following text and answer the following questions:

Lesson: Foundation of a Society

Society is not only a group of individuals. It is the network of relationships to each other. There are many bases that lay the foundation of a society. Some of them are given below:

- Interdependence and co-operation:

Societies are formed because an individual cannot fulfil his/her needs himself/herself. He/she needs the help of other people.

- Feeling of security:

A group is more powerful than an individual. People live in a society for their security from dangers.

- Sharing of feeling:

An individual or a group wants to share sorrow, happiness and thoughts with other people. So, a society is formed to share feelings.

- Culture:

People belonging to a similar culture have similar ways of life. They mix up well with each other. Culture guides people. It binds people together in the society.

- Responsibility:

Every individual has a role and status in the society. A society cannot exist if every individual is not responsible for his/her role.

- Profession:

People are related with the people of same profession and from other professions. So, professions help to form a society.
